PARTY: Republican
SEEKING: Senate, District 48

1. Why are you seeking your office?

After the questionable 2020 election, I became deeply involved in grassroots election integrity efforts within Georgia. I eventually determined that what we really needed was honest, tenacious people in the state legislature who could not be bought off or intimidated. If ordinary citizens do not step up to provide true representation for “We the People”, I fear that we are going to lose our country. I am determined to do my small part to protect the future for my wife, two young girls, and the next generation.

2. What do you expect to accomplish if elected?

I plan to help eliminate Dominion Voting Systems and all drop boxes within the state of Georgia. In addition, I am passionate about securing school choice for Georgia families and passing legislation that will further protect Georgia citizens from experimental vaccine mandates. Illegal immigration and the influx of fentanyl is another problem that must be tackled. The state legislature does actually have tools to address illegal immigration, but the big business lobby does not want Republicans discussing this.

3. What distinguishes your candidacy?

I have been extremely active at the grassroots level since well before I ever considered running for office. This, along with my signed pledge to serve no more than eight years, shows that I am here for the right reasons and have zero interest in power or personal gain. My policy platform – especially concerning election integrity – has also remained consistent throughout my campaign. That is because I have done the work to understand the issues, and I know exactly what must be done to address vulnerabilities.

4. Pick any one issue. Expand on how you will address it.

Election integrity. Beyond the fixes discussed above, I also will fight to get rid of no-excuse absentee voting and all indirect private funding of our elections by partisan groups. Furthermore, I will push for much stronger ID verification for absentee ballots, such as potentially a notarized affidavit requirement.

5. What are your ideas on curbing all the many area-wide shootings?

Promoting stable and loving families is one big thing we can do. This means ensuring our schools are not indoctrinating students or trying to replace parents as the biggest influence in their lives. Additionally, securing our elections at the state level will help America First candidates get elected to the federal government. This is critical in order to use tariffs to bring our manufacturing base back to the United States, which will boost incomes and, therefore, bolster the financial stability of families. I also believe that gun safety education is the best way to prevent accidental discharge shootings.

6. Please give a 100 word summary on your background

I grew up in northwest Indiana and graduated from Purdue University. I also earned a law degree from Northwestern University School of Law in 2008 and then moved down to Georgia with my wife, where I passed the Georgia bar. I was offered a well-paying job outside the legal field with flexible hours, and I decided to pursue a non-legal career path. Currently, I am employed by a major grocery store chain. This means I can read legalese and even write bill language without having to call in legal counsel, but I also easily see the perspective of non-lawyers.
